Judicial punishment among the Alnus Judicial punishment among the Ainus consists of a severe beating with a stick administered to the culprit. The crimes are generally theft—stealing articles or the wife of a neighbor. As there are eight men to one woman the majority of the males are not married, and wife stealing is very common. Among the many curious customs of the Ainus perhaps the quafintest is their method of naming their children. They observe a peculiar economy in giving names. The infant must go without a name until it shows itself worthy of bearing one. If it is sickly and not likely to live, it is not considered worth while to waste a name upon it. As each child must by jumemorial customs have a brand new yame, used by no one in the community, names are scarce and must be guarded. Curious Vienna Law. They have curious laws in Vienna and enforce them too. Recently Marie Friedl and Felix Kopstein, aged 15 and 13 years respectively, were walking along a street in the Austrian capital when they came across an old woman staggering along under the weight of a white, heavy package. Moved by pity, they offered to carry it for the old woman, a proposition to which she readily acreded. The kind hearted children had not gone far before they were arrested by a policeman for carrying parcels ithout a license. The children were taken to a police station, where the offeer in charge lectured them upon the enormity of their offense. They were kept under arrest for six hours and
